BAZAAR MEETS DESIGNER ROSANTICA

Dec 12, 2012 3:02:00 AM / by Lucy Halfhead / add comments

A meal at bespoke burger joint BRGR.CO is your chance to get creative with your food. Now up and running in the heart of London's buzzing Soho district, this newcomer stands out from the crowd with its monochrome dining space peppered with fun design touches like the giant multicoloured cow heads that hang on the wall. These will be regularly auctioned with proceeds going to local London charities.

The menu offers three classic choices of burger - the 4oz, 6oz or 8oz - from which to start building your bespoke meal. Play chef and choose from four different cheeses and a plethora of sauces to add to your stack, served neatly on paper-lined silver trays. The meat itself is bursting with flavour (and cooked to exact specifications!) - a testament to using the finest cuts of 28-day aged beef from the Duke of Buccleuch Estate in Scotland. Sides on offer include an amazing coleslaw - fresh and crunchy - and a mind-boggling variety of fries and dips.

If you have any room left, the American-inspired desserts do not dissappoint - including a luxurious chocolate brownie and a decadent ice-cream sundae topped with M&Ms. Stay tuned here.
